

Bodybuilders and athletes, with high muscle mass, may have misleadingly high BMI scores despite low fat levels. It's possible to be obese at a "normal" weight if body fat percentage is high, increasing health risks.