

Research Objective: The research aims to explore the relationship between Building Information Modeling (BIM) and sustainability practices, and to identify how the integration of BIM with sustainable design principles can radically transform the construction sector by improving efficiency, reducing negative environmental impacts, and enhancing resource savings across the project life cycle