

After the Deepwater Horizon oil spill in April 2010, President Obama halted new offshore drilling leases and ordered an investigation. The Department of the Interior imposed a six-month moratorium on deepwater drilling, affecting 33 rigs