

Histamine: It is a chemical substance produced by a variety of cells in response to tissue injury. It binds to receptors on nearby capillaries and venules, causing vasodilatation and increased permeability.