

After the Corona virus affected many individuals, they began working from home out of fear of becoming infected, but after a lengthy period of time, people wanted to return to work, but with safeguards and to ensure their safety. As designers, it is our responsibility to develop furniture that is appropriate for the present context.