

The important thing is that electronic health care services can be applied in multiple fields, including: medical and health management, strategic health planning, health education and health care, patient care and support, preventive health, and many other areas and services