A desktop visualization separates the desktop environment from the physical devices that the user interacts with.