

Treadmill Training Treadmill training can be used in both Gait Re-education/Training but also in aiding the recovery of gains in aerobic function. Treadmill training can be done with partially supported body weight of the patient via a harness in an attempt to grade the amount of supported body weight that is utilized with patients with extensive functional limitation. See Gait training in stroke