

In Fig.3 we report the trend of the Attack Surface metrics detected by active hosts percentage, open server and client services percentage and established interactions percentage. On the y-axis are present the percentage values of the relative metrics. Starting from the graphs is possible to understand that the described trends are not constant