

The chromosomes with 2 chromatids move to the center of the cell and line up along the equator forming the equatorial plate