

Texture analysis based on quantitative kinetic parametric maps derived from breast DCE-MRI can contribute to the discrimination between malignant and benign lesions