Explaining the functions and tasks that the program must perform, we can say that they are "inputs," "processes," and "outputs." Example of mathematical operations Non Functional Requirements A set of quality and performance standards that must be provided in the program and their priority, and they differ from one program to another. For example, speed