In 1853, in a New York restaurant, a customer complained that the fried potatoes were too soggy and thick. He repeatedly sent them back to the waiter.