

No single factor can possibly explain this complex human experience of depression. The relative contribution of each factor may be different in each case