The maid brought tea, but was surprised to hear Sounds of anger and screaming from the room. I . knocked on the door, but did not receive any response. I tried to open the door, but it was locked from the inside. I heard a loud scream and a crash. I quickly went and told the driver and the cookr they tried to open the door, but it was locked, so the driver went from behind the house to the large glass window and tried to enter. Nancy stopped screaming and fainted, and Colonel Barclay was lying stained and soaked in blood. The first thing the driver thought of was to open the door, but the key was not there, so he went out of the window and brought the police with him. The doctor took Colonel Barclay's body and examined it. They discovered that someone had hit him in the head with a blunt weapon. Two days after the incident occurred, Mrs. Nanasi and her friend who had gone with her to join were interrogated. Nancy's friend said that she met a strange man with a back curved like a mountain and who walked strangely. Nanasi was very afraid. She described Nanasi's friend. They found this man quickly because of his crooked appearance. He was interrogated, and they believed that this crooked man was the one who killed the colonel, but after further examinations, it turned outAfter examinations, they discovered that the crooked man was not the killer, because Colonel Barclay died of a heart attack, and that when .he died, he was knocked on the edge of the table, causing him to bleed
