Problem: In a workplace, employees may hold outdated or inaccurate mental models about a particular process or workflow.This program could include workshops, online courses, or interactive sessions focused on the latest best practices, industry trends, and updates in relevant processes.Solution: Implement a continuous learning and training program that encourages employees to regularly revisit and update their mental models.