For a student to perform a quantitative analysis of the chemical treatment of PET (Polyethylene Terephthalate), they can utilize several analytical methods to measure the extent of degradation and identify the resulting compounds. Combined Absorption/1H NMR Method: A combined approach using bulk absorption measurements and 1H NMR analysis can provide both qualitative and quantitative data .on PET degradation products