

An electric car is powered by electricity, so there are many applications for it. One of these applications is replacing the original engine of the car and putting the electric motor in its place. It is easier to convert from gasoline to electricity while reducing other components, and providing the necessary engine by storing electric batteries