

I would love to be a teacher, because I love working with children and I am passionate about education. They work in a variety of settings, from elementary schools to colleges and universities. Teaching is a rewarding career, but it can also be challenging.