

The Fund's allocation of market value of net assets by country shows the countries in which the fund is most heavily invested. Speculating on the reasons for this allocation can involve various factors, including market size, economic stability, industry opportunities, and the fund manager's assessment of growth potential.