Vending machine It is a machine for selling medications.All machines will be linked to sensors to know their locations and deliver them to an application on the phone, which will also include allowing users to know the contents of the machines with a simple explanation of that medications and drugs prices, also the user can contact any pharmacist to inquire about any medicine they need, moreover that the machines will contain Tablet devices to know the contents of the machine from medications, prices and contain a simple explanation of these medications with the availability of drinking water in the last row of the machine.