Introduction: Nutritional intervention is effec-tive in improving glycemic control in patientswith type 2 diabetes but requires large inputs ofmanpower. The aim of this studyis to test the hypothesis that Alsupportednutritional intervention is as efficacious as thein-person, face-to-face method in terms of improving glycemic control in patients with type 2 diabetes