

Jane left Dan in the bathroom, and went to get his clean clothes and a towel. Then he got undressed quickly, jumped into the bath and disappeared under the bubbles. He had a great time diving under the bubbles. Dan turned on the bath taps. He took the top off the bottle and poured some of the bubble bath into the bath. 'I'll only put in a little bit,' he thought. 'You don't need much to make a lot of bubbles.' 'Are you OK?' 'I'll leave the towel and your clothes outside the door.' He was still pouring the bubble bath into the water! The bottle was empty, and the bath was full of bubbles! 'Oh well,' thought Dan, 'they're only bubbles!' Then suddenly, Dad was in the doorway, looking cross. Then he saw a bottle of purple bubble bath. 'That looks nice,' he thought. There was a knock on the door. 'Jane,' called Jane. 'Yes,' said Dan. 'Thanks.' Dan looked down. 'Oh no!' He went to get the towel and his clothes from outside the bathroom. 'It was lovely. This is fun!' he thought. 'What have you done this time, Dan?' he said
