

During the Israel–Iran war, the GCC states displayed great political cohesion, and this has grown further since Iran's attack on Qatar. In 2019, the Iranian attack against Saudi Aramco's plants pushed Saudi Arabia and the UAE to recalibrate their foreign policies from 'polarising competition' to 'stabilising cooperation'.