

This is due to the mother-of-pearl inlay found throughout its belongings and the ceramic tiled, fireplace-equipped Shekma Hall (a Turkish term meaning the building's conspicuous portion), a space reserved for women during summer gatherings. This is due to the mother-of-pearl inlay found throughout its belongings and the ceramic tiled, fireplace-equipped Shekma Hall (a Turkish term meaning the building's conspicuous portion), a space reserved for women during summer gatherings. This is due to the mother-of-pearl inlay found throughout its belongings and the ceramic tiled, fireplace-equipped Shekma Hall (a Turkish term meaning the building's conspicuous portion), a space reserved for women during summer gatherings. Constructed in 1231 AH/3091 AD, the Residence Palace is among the palace's oldest structures. In particular for the harem. In particular for the harem