

The importance of dignity is evident from the very start of the story when Mrs. Jones confidently orders Roger to pick up the purse he tears off her shoulder. Although she works late hours at a job that likely does not win her much respect, she carries herself with a fierce conviction and sense of her own rectitude.