

Second/foreign language researchers state that grammatical grading of content interferes with language acquisition which is more a global than a linear process