

Due to its input–output impedance characteristics, the common base speaker course of action is greatly valuable in sound and radio recurrence applications as a current buffer to coordinate a low–impedance source to a high–impedance stack or as a single–stage speaker as portion of a cascaded or multi–stage setup