

Because of total internal reflection a beam of light can be transmitted within the fiber over a very long distance