

Academic achievement is of great importance, as academic achievement in its general sense refers to the amount of information that students obtain during their studies, and it does not bear fruit unless it results from a study of students' abilities and aptitudes by those responsible for them. We also continue to explain the types of academic achievement and the factors affecting it. Student guidance process