

Increases in current asset accounts and decreases in current liability accounts are deducted from net profit when calculating cash flow from operating activities