

Environmental, social, and governance (ESG) scores are used to evaluate a company's performance in areas like sustainability, social impact, and corporate governance. Some components of ESG scores include carbon emissions, employee diversity, board diversity, and ethical business practices.