

Enterprise systems are software applications that are specifically developed to assist and streamline different business processes and functions within an organization. Typically, these systems are implemented using enterprise resource planning (ERP) software with the goal of enhancing operational efficiency, productivity, and adaptability.