Online documentary research uses computers, communication tools, and networks to locate documents. This involves utilizing computerized systems, software, communication technologies, and networking methods.