

Have you ever thought why your son has become weak in his studies and in his school behavior? Some schools resort to inappropriate punishments such as beating, and this negatively affects the student, which leads to his hatred of the school and his misbehavior. In terms of solutions, it is important for the school to change the methods of punishment that it takes and is interested in the student and in improving his behavior more, rather than resorting to penalties that harm the health and psychology of the student. Another major problem is the bullying of students, where students bully some, such as students who do not care much about their appearance or have a physical disability, which includes the student's dislike of school and sitting in it because of them. Another big problem is that some teachers make the exams difficult and their explanation of the syllabus difficult, because they have struggled in their studies before, and this may affect the student in that he is very weak in this material because of the teacher. Students' behavior and interest in their studies weaken in certain stages, such as middle and high school. There are many reasons from several aspects, such as: the school, the parents, the bullying students. Firstly, how can school be a cause of student misbehavior? Also, the teacher should benefit from his previous difficult study experience by making it easier for the students to study the material so that they work harder in their studies. Secondly, the main causes of student misbehavior are parents. When there are problems between the student's parents, this affects the student a lot from a psychological point of view, so that he becomes even at school thinking about his family and away from studying due to his poor psychological condition. The school should punish bullying students, This is very bad behavior and hurts the feelings of other students
