

Radiation resistance is that piece of an antenna feed point resistance which leads to the radiation of electromagnetic waves from the antenna, instead of misfortune resistance which by and large makes the antenna warm up. Aggregate of the radiation resistance and misfortune resistance is the electrical resistance of the antenna.