

It has attracted global attention as it causes the global warming and disrupts the global carbon cycle. Environmental destruction has emerged as a serious global problem affecting both developing and developed nations.