Financial directors who keep up with the times and use Business Intelligence in financial services and thereby automate reporting and reduce the amount of manual and routine work in the activities of financial departments. And their assistant is a BI system that collects, analyzes, and integrates disparate data from all IT systems into understandable reports.