

The findings of this study indicate that by 2050, approximately 350,000 individuals are expected to have T2DM in Oman (a 174% rise from estimates made for 2015). Conclusion: Diabetes prevention and control must be prioritized by health authorities to prevent or delay long-term complications and to avert a possible diabetes epidemic in Oman.