

Football's origins can be traced back to ancient civilizations where different cultures played ball games with their feet