Stimuli are signals from the outside (like sounds or sights) or inside (like hunger or pain) that make an organism react. Classical conditioning is the type of learning where a neutral thing gets linked to .something important, making a reaction happen