

Once there was a dog whondered the streets night and day in search of food. But as he opened his mouth, the bone he, was biting fell into the river and sank. He wanted that bone for himself too