

With the first beginnings of the UAE, the late Sheikh Zayed Bin Sultan Al Nahyan was well aware that the first and biggest challenge is to improve the lives of citizens by providing them with the basics of a decent life. In this context, Sheikh Zayed ordered the establishment of residential neighborhoods that include popular homes for residents of different emirates. With time and the development of the state, the popular houses became an indicator of the economic and social changes in the UAE society through the changes in the construction.
