

It's not always negative when teenagers spend time in front of screens if the content they're engaging with is informative, helpful, or useful