

I think we might be a little bit uncertain on the potential complications from after the surgery, like infection or anything or maybe recurrence not very specific That's the only thing My understanding is that the probability is very low I would still love to have more information about it , I suggest if they give more information about what to do in advance with complications Yeah, well, at least for people who live at cost i would recommend they give more details or more instructions uh what to do what the more more details and more instructions what to expect what to do
