

As Burke (1998) found that workers with higher readiness for change scores reported slightly higher emotional exhaustion scores