

Expect your managers to set a good example. Make sure the managers know exactly what is expected of them, and follow up with them regularly to make sure they are serving as role models for the rest of the employees. Employees tend to copy the behavior of authority figures.