

Business continuity plans need to be tested to ensure they will be effective. Targeted staff training and communicating to the whole workforce the benefits of having a business continuity plan are also vital to its success. This approach helps to identify gaps, develop strategies for improvement, and determine if more resources are needed.