

Error: 1- Inaccurate measurement of reagents: Errors in measuring the amounts of lead chloride and lead halides can lead to deviations in stoichiometry and affect the outcome of the reaction. 4-Cross-contamination: Contamination of reagents or equipment from previous experiments can introduce impurities and affect the purity of the reaction mixture.