

Limitations: of this study include the small sample size from one university, reducing generalizability along with knowledge gaps. Ultimately multifaceted engagement underpinned by additional research is warranted to achieve cultural inroads broadening organ donation acceptance throughout Egyptian society regardless of location, education or creed. Study design was cross-sectional lacking longitudinal trends, allowing biases